

In spaces where individuals negotiate kinship networks under varying degrees of adver

Social workers have a tremendous amount of power over the discourses that circulate about those they work with. Through processes of labeling, medicalization, and individualization, social workers can produce and reinforce potential

R