Office Hours: Mondays and Thursdays 10:00-11:15 a.m.

The Instructor:

I was born in Vancouver and raised in Burnaby. Even as a student at Burnaby North High School, I was interested in philosophy. (This is unusual; most students come to philosophy after initially intending to study something else.) After receiving my B.A. at Simon Fraser, I completed an M.A. at the University of Waterloo in Ontario and a Ph.D. at Boston University. I taught for a year at the University of Calgary before coming to the University of Victoria. I was also a research fellow for a year at Melbourne University in Australia. I am currently Professor of Philosophy at the University of Victoria.

I have a long-standing interest in philosophy of art, and I have written three books: on the subject: Art and Knowledge (2001), Cultural Appropriation and the Art (2008) and Critique of Pure Music, 2014. I also edited the four volume collection, Aesthetics: The Critical Concepts in Philosophy (2005). My most recent book is a translation with The Fine Arts Reduced to a Single Principle (2015).

My interest in philosophy of art is, in part, an outgrowth of my interest in the arts. I am particularly interested in music and literature. I am Artistic Director of the Early Music Society of the Islands and I am an amateur harpsichordist (a very bad one). If I had to go to a desert island with the recordings of one composer, I would choose Handel. If, on my desert island, I could have the works of only one novelist, I would choose Jane Austen.

Outline

This course is designed to introduce students to the main questions in philosophy of art. We will read a series of classical and contemporary writers. We will focus on defining the concept of art, determining what a work of art is, and answering fundamental questions about the interpretation and evaluation of works of art.

Text:

Steven M. Cahn and Aaron Meskin (eds.), Aesthetics: A Comprehensive Anthology.

Additional readings will be distributed.

Grading:

Students will write two essays of approximately 1500 words, a series of eight surprise quizzes and a short exercise in experiential learning. The best five grades on the quizzes will be used in the calculation of your final grade. The quizzes, together, will be worth 10% of the course grade. Each of the two essays will be worth 40%. The exercise in experiential learning will be worth 10%

Four criteria will be used in assessing essays: (1) effective and correct use of the English language; (2) accurate presentation of the views of the philosophers discussed; (3) presentation of valid arguments; and (4) evidence of original thought. A first class essay will be characterised by clear, grammatical prose and careful exegesis. It will display an appreciation of the strengths and weaknesses of the arguments being discussed. It will state a thesis and present reasoned arguments for it. A first class essay will also contain evidence of your own efforts grapple with philosophical issues and to arrive at your own solutions. Students are not expected to make startling philosophical discoveries, but they are expected to engage the issues. Students are strongly discouraged from making extensive use of secondary sources. You should not need to read anything except the assigned readings reflections are more important than a survey of the extant literature.

After the deadlines, essays will be accepted without penalty for seven days. If papers are submitted after the deadline, the instructor is not under an obligation to provide written comments on them. No papers will be accepted more than seven days after the deadline. Exceptions will be made only in cases of properly documented illness or personal crisis. Requests for exceptions must be received in writing and no more than seven days after the deadline.

The exercise in experiential learning will involve attending a live arts event in the course of the term. The arts event can be a concert, a play, an opera, a poetry reading, a gallery showing, an artistic installation, or a similar event. This exercise should be no more than two pages (or about 500 words) long. Students will engage with the art presented, using some of the concepts or theories acquired in PHIL 240.

Students will receive a final grade out of 100 points. Numbers will be converted to a letter grade in accordance with the following scale: 90-100=A+; 85-89=A; 80-84=A-; 77-79=B+; 73-76=B; 70-72=B-; 65-69=C+; 60-64=C; 50-59= D; 0-49=F. Final grades will be rounded to the nearest whole number.
