Additional readings will be distributed.

Grading:

Students will write two essays of approximately 1500 words, a series of eight surprise quizzes and a short exercise in experiential learning. The best five grades on the quizzes will be used in the calculation of your final grade. The quizzes, together, will be worth 10% of the course grade. Each of the two essays will be worth 40%. The exercise in experiential learning will be worth 10%

Four criteria will be used in assessing essays: (1) effective and correct use of the English language; (2) accurate presentation of the views of the philosophers discussed; (3) presentation of valid arguments; and (4) evidence of original thought. A first class essay will be characterised by clear, grammatical prose and careful exegesis. It will display an appreciation of the strengths and weaknesses of the arguments being discussed. It will state a thesis and present reasoned arguments for it. A first class essay will also contain evidence of your own efforts grapple with philosophical issues and to arrive at your own solutions. Students are not expected to make startling philosophical discoveries, but they are expected to engage the issues. Students are strongly discouraged from making extensive use of secondary sources. You should not need to read anything except the assigned readings. Students' own reasoned reflections are more important than a survey of the extant literature.

After the deadlines, essays will be accepted without penalty for seven days. If papers are submitted after the deadline, the instructor is not under an obligation to provide written comments on them. No papers will be accepted more than seven days after the deadline. Exceptions will be made only in cases of properly documented illness or personal crisis. Requests for exceptions must be received in writing and no more than seven days after the deadline. If you miss a quiz for good reason, see me about writing a makeup quiz.

The exercise in experiential learning will involve attending a live arts event in the course of the term. The arts event can be a concert, a play, an opera, a poetry reading, a gallery showing, an artistic installation, or a similar event. It may not, however, be an event in a club where alcohol is served. This exercise should be no more than two pages (or about 500 words) long. Students will engage with the art presented, using some of the concepts or theories acquired in PHIL 240.

Students will receive a final grade out of 100 points. Numbers will be converted to a letter grade in accordance with the following scale: 90-100=A+; 85-89=A; 80-84=A-; 77-79=B+; 73-76=B; 70-72=B-; 65-69=C+; 60-64=C; 50-59= D; 0-49=F. Final grades will be rounded to the nearest whole number.

N grades

Students who have completed the following elements will be considered to have completed the course and will be assigned a final grade:

Essay 1

Essay 2

At least four of the eight surprise quizzes

Experiential learning exercise

Failure to complete one or more of these elements will result in a grade of “N” regardless of the cumulative percentage on other elements of the course. An N is a failing grade, and it factors into a student’s GPA as O. The maximum percentage that can accompany an N on a student’s transcript is 49

Plagiarism

Plagiarism is a serious academic offence and will not be tolerated. Please see the University Calendar for a description of plagiarism. The minimum penalty is a failing grade on the assignment produced by plagiarism. Serious or repeated plagiarism can result in failure of a course and even expulsion from the University.
