

by Jessica Gillies

---

It's a common misconception that the only way to get a job is to apply for it. In fact, many jobs are filled through referrals from current employees. This is because referrals are a more reliable way to find qualified candidates who are likely to stay with the company.

Referrals are also a great way to find people who are a good fit for the company culture. This is because current employees are likely to know who would be a good fit for the company.

There are many ways to get referrals. One way is to ask your current employees to refer people to you. Another way is to ask your former employees to refer people to you. You can also ask your friends and family to refer people to you.

Referrals are a great way to find qualified candidates who are likely to stay with the company. This is because referrals are a more reliable way to find qualified candidates who are likely to stay with the company.

Referrals are also a great way to find people who are a good fit for the company culture. This is because current employees are likely to know who would be a good fit for the company.