

The University of Victoria will not renew its Model License Agreement with Access Copyright (AC), after December 31, 2015. The past several years has seen a substantial increase in licence fees. As a result, the substantially increased cost for a model license has raised UVic's royalty payments to an unsustainable level. UVic will join the large number of Canadian universities, which include SFU and UBC, that operate outside of the Access Copyright license. I am outlining below the additional

How will this affect teaching and research activities?
