- Attempt to imagine yourself in someone else's shoes – to feel their feelings and to think their thoughts
- Understand that empathy is the intention to know what another person is experiencing, and not necessarily to respond to that experience in any concrete way
- Acknowledge that as human beings, we always have limited capacity to understand the entirety of another's experience

We are grateful to Dan Reist, Mahboubeh Asgari and the Canadian Institute for Substance Use Research for developing the original version of this resource and adapting it for BC Mental Health and Substance Use Services.
