

Department of Geography - University of Victoria
Course Outline - Geography 101b
Introduction to Human Geography
A01-A06 Fall 2014

MARK ALLOCATION FOR GEOG 101B

| | Marks | Important Dates |
|---|--------------|--|
| Lab Exercises | 40% | See Below |
| Note: There will be both individual and group based assignments | | |
| Midterm | 20% | October 16th in Class |
| Final Exam | 40% | University Exam Period- will be posted later |

Laboratory sessions form an integral part of the course because they enable a more detailed examination of ideas that are covered in the lectures, as well as introducing various practical geographic skills. The labs materials are designed to be both supplemental and complementary to the lectures and assigned readings. A range of experiences are covered in the laboratory sessions including computer-based exercises, discussions, reports, presentations, videos, debates. Furthermore, they are intended to counter the anonymity often experienced in the large lecture sections. Although most of your contact will be with your individual lab instructor, it is important to re

