

OPTICAL DATING: History and Theory of the Method and its Application to Research in Geomorphology, Quaternary Geology, and Archaeology

Olav Lian

University of the Fraser Valley

Luminescence dating, which includes thermoluminescence (TL) and optical dating, consists of a collection of numerical-age techniques that are among the most important chronological tools currently used in Quaternary research. In this talk, I will review concisely the key