To ensure a broad scientific foundation in general psychology, graduate students must document that they have completed a set of undergraduate competency requirements (UCRs) at the time they enroll in our Graduate Program in Clinical Psychology. If a review of the student's undergraduate transcript reveals that one or more UCRs are lacking, a plan for coursework to cover the lacking background in the general psychology must be developed and the course(s) must then be completed before graduation at the Master's degree level. These requirements are prescribed by CPA and APA accreditation standards and play an important role in becoming registered or licensed as professional psychologists following the completion of the PhD.

The wide range of courses offered within our Graduate Program in Clinical Psychology can easily provide coverage in these general psychology areas at the graduate level, but planning ahead may help you to make the best possible course selections. Whenever possible it is to the student's advantage to take a graduate course rather than an undergraduate course in order to fulfill a lacking UCR area. Sometimes, however, the graduate course offerings available to fulfill a specific missing UCR requirement for an individual student may be too challenging without the preparation of an upper level undergraduate course in that area. Consultation with your supervisor and clinical training advisor will help you to decide what options might be best for you.

: For each UCR, students must have received a first class grade (A- or better) in a 3rd or 4th year level undergraduate course in each of 4 areas of psychology. Courses can be half or full year courses, but there must be a minimum of 1.5 units in each area, or 6.0 units total. On the actual "Verification of Undergraduate Competency Requirements" form found below you will need to document the details of courses taken to cover each of these four areas, as well as specific plans for how unmet requirements will be completed.
